In anticipation of any opposition on nomination day, Hon Chas Stewart has been doing a little quiet campaigning the past few weeks; in the course of which he held a meeting in Stony Saturday night. Mr Stewart spoke for over an hour, and gave one of his characteristic addresses in which he reviewed the situation confronting the present Federal government. His remarks proved very interesting, and the address deserved a much larger audience than that which was present.

As expected, Hon Charles Stewart was re-elected by acclamation for West Edmonton, on nomination day, Nov 2, as also were the rest of the cabinet ministers in the Macdonald King Government.

Votes And Their Value

Analysis of the vote cast in the last Dominion general election discloses the same anomalies and contradictions revealed in elections generally for many years, and which, while causing much dissatisfaction and open criticism have, as yet, failed to result in steps being taken to remedy, an admittedly weak condition in our present form of democratic government and in the election of representatives in Parliament. Various schemes have been suggested as a means of overcoming this weakness but none have proved wholly acceptable to a majority of the people.

The situation complained of is that all votes have not equal value; that, as a matter of actual fact, the vote of one man, or woman, is in many instances just as effective in electing a representative as the votes of two or three men and women; that Canada today does not enjoy representation based on population; that the majority does not rule.

In support of these contentions it is pointed out that in the recent election the Conservatives polled 1,476,747 votes and elected 91 members to the House of Commons, while Liberals and Liberal-Progressives combined polled 1,454,998, or 21,614 votes less, but elected 132 members. In other words, Liberal and Liberal-Progressive votes had greater power than Conservative votes. Why?

The reason is found in the fact that Conservative strength lies chiefly in the large manufacturing cities and centres of population like Toronto, Hamilton, London, Halifax, Vancouver, Montreal and Winnipeg. In these cities Conservatives are usually elected by huge majorities. On the other hand, in smaller urban and rural ridings the candidates of other parties have a fighting chance and are frequently elected but by much smaller majorities.

Furthermore, it has always been an accepted principle that the unit of population entitled to elect a member should be larger for cities than for rural districts. All political parties have agreed as to this, it being recognized that a City Member can keep more closely in touch with his constituents than can a member representing a rural riding, and that residents in a city constituency have means of making their views and desires known, and of enforcing their opinions, which is not possible in a rural constituency with a scattered population. There is so much force in this that no party has ever seriously challenged the fairness of requiring a larger population in city constituencies.

The existing plan of single member constituencies with larger populations in city ridings works to the advantage of the Conservatives. In the cities where Liberals and Labor are denied the representation to which their numbers entitle them, but, on the other hand, it works to the advantage of Liberals and other groups in the rural ridings.

To right the grievances in both sets of constituencies the advocates of Proportional Representation urge the abolition of the single member constituencies and the creation of larger constituencies electing four or five members each and the use of the single transferable ballot whereby every considerable group of public opinion would be able to obtain representation in exact proportion to its voting strength.

Objection is taken to this plan on the ground that it would result in too many groups in Parliament and the consequent inability of any one party or group to form a strong government. The force of this objection is, however, weakened by the fact that the present system has in no way prevented such groups, and the deadlock which existed in the last two Parliaments was brought about, not under Proportional Representation, but under the existing system. Even in the newly elected Parliament there are no less than seven distinct groups as follows: Liberals, 119 members; Conservatives, 91; Progressives, 5; Liberal-Progressives, 13; United Farmers of Alberta, 11; Labor, 3, and Independents 2.

Another objection, and a much stronger one, is that while Proportional Representation might be workable in centres of population, it is hardly applicable to settled rural Canada where constituencies to elect four or five members would have to be unduly large.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, the newly chosen temporary leader of the Conservative party, announces that while he does not favor Proportional Representation, something should be done to remove the inequalities in representation which now exist. He therefore advocates making the unit of population for all constituencies, urban and rural, the same. This would assist to remove the Conservative grievance in rural ridings, but would continue all the handicaps under which Liberals, Labor and others now suffer in the large city constituencies. Further, unless the membership of the House of Commons was largely increased it would mean greatly reducing the representation of all rural and the smaller urban centres while adding enormously to the large cities and manufacturing centres, thus practically giving the Conservative party a permanent position of power.

During the last century giant forward strides have been made in the extension of the franchise and in simplifying and improving methods of election, but with it all we have rigidly adhered to an obsolete constituency method of dividing the country and which is responsible for the well founded complaints now heard. There is room for reform in this vitally important matter in order that real democracy may prevail.

Process Perfected That Makes All Blood Suitable For Transfusions

The time is not far away when blood suitable for use in transfusions can be obtained in bottles at a drug store. Dr. J. L. Yates, Milwaukee, Wis., predicted at the convention of the Interstate Post Graduate Medical Assembly in Cleveland.

Often when a minute's time balances the life of a patient needing a blood transfusion a "donor" with right kind of blood cannot be found. Dr. Yates pointed out. Scientists in Prague, Bohemia, Dr. Yates said, have perfect centrifugal washing process of blood serum which is so profound that it will render suitable even the blood of oxen and sheep, which, if transfused in natural state, would bring almost instant death.

It was deemed practicable that this process will make it possible to buy at a drug store blood bottled up without "characteristic" and ready to match for transfusion.

RHEUMATIC PAIN

AND THIN BLOOD

Liniments of No Avail — The Trouble Must Be Treated Through the Blood

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the swollen, aching joints is a little relief and all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and the trouble now on the blood becomes still further thin and watery. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved an all-time winner. They make new blood. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and the rheumatism disappears. There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada, now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this dreaded trouble. One of these is Mr. Robt. A. Smith, Mersey Point, N.S., who says: "Some years ago I was attacked with rheumatism, which grew so bad that I could not walk and had to go to bed under the doctor's care. It is needless to say that I underwent a great deal of suffering. The doctor's medicine did not seem to reach the trouble, so when I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I did so, and after taking them for some weeks I was able to get out of bed. I continued using the pills and was soon able to work, and I have not been troubled with rheumatism since. In other respects also I derived a great deal of benefit from these pills and I think them a wonderful remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Discovers New Hybrid Plant Combining The Advantages Of Both Sweet Clover And Alfalfa

Scientific agriculturists throughout Canada and the United States, first started and then intensely interested, are now following with close attention research work proceeding at the University of Saskatchewan into the production of a forage plant which apparently combines the advantages of both Arctic sweet clover and alfalfa, and eliminates the disadvantages of each.

The research work began when Prof. L. E. Kirk, in charge of forage crop work in the university's field husbandry department, discovered in a plot of Arctic sweet clover a number of strange plants, bearing evidence of being the result of a cross between Arctic and alfalfa. This was in 1924 and since that time the work has been proceeding along quietly.

It will be a long time yet before any definite announcement can be made regarding the values of the new plant, but agricultural authorities at the university had some cause for optimism in the result of their research to date.

The far-reaching importance of the discovery is explained by Dean W. J. Rutherford, head of the Saskatchewan College of Agriculture, on the fact that officially known as the agricultural college of the university.

From year to year, as the prairie soil is used again and again for wheat production, the nitrogen content of the soil, without which wheat production is a practical impossibility, is becoming more and more depleted. As Dean Rutherford expresses it, part of the nitrogen of the prairie soil is annually shipped east with the wheat.

Unless the nitrogen can be replaced, the great prairie area, the name given by agriculturalists to the wheat-producing areas of Canada and the United States, will eventually reach the stage where wheat can no longer be grown. Leguminous plants have been enlisted by the scientific agriculturists to replace the lost nitrogen. Legumes store up nitrogen about their roots and this nitrogen remains in the soil for succeeding plants of any species, including wheat. Sweet clover and alfalfa, the supposed parents of the new plant which is the centre of interest in the forage crop branch at the university, are both legumes. Both can give back to the soil the precious nitrogen taken from them by wheat crops.

The vital importance of legumes in the production of wheat crops is thus apparent.

Both Arctic sweet clover and alfalfa, however, have objectionable characteristics. Conditions of Saskatchewan agriculture make Arctic sweet clover preferable to alfalfa as a rotation legume, although wherever and when the latter plant can be successfully used in a crop rotation, it is the better of the two, according to Dean Rutherford. Both alfalfa and Arctic, in addition to replacing nitrogen, supply excellent feed and pasture. Alfalfa seed is quite expensive.

An entirely new avenue of agricultural possibilities is opened up through the discovery of the plant and the progress made to the present in research. Whether the end of the avenue leads agriculture immeasurably benefited from a practical as well as scientific point of view, or whether the research work results in disappointment cannot yet be conjectured.

The discovery of the new plant occasioned considerable surprise in the agricultural world, not only from a realization of its possible practical values, but from the very fact of the apparent cross between Arctic clover and alfalfa—two greatly different species of plants.

Just about the time Prof. Kirk made his discovery, similar discoveries were made independently in Manitoba and North Dakota. Research work is also under way in those places.

How He Acquired Scotch

An English visitor found himself seated next to a distinguished Maori at a public function. In the course of conversation the Maori remarked: "You may be surprised to hear that I have Scottish blood in my veins." "I am indeed," replied the Englishman. "How is that?" "Well, as a matter of fact, my grandfather had a Scottish Presbyterian missionary for a dinner."

Feeding Young Pigs

Ill-Balanced Rations Have Marked Effect On Future Development

Proper feeding runs parallel with correct breeding in the raising of swine. Mr. G. B. Rothwell, Dominion Animal Husbandman, in pamphlet No. 74 of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, on "Breeding and Feeding of the Market Hog," ventures to suggest that it may almost be safe to claim that within at least a very few generations type itself may be modified by the feeds fed and the system of feeding followed. Ill-balanced rations, injurious substitutes, deficient rations, over-or under-feeding, lack of intelligent understanding of nutritional requirements generally, Mr. Rothwell points out, all exert a powerful influence during the early growing period on affecting future development. The foundation for profitable raising of swine depends largely, as the Dominion Animal Husbandman further says, "upon the condition to which the feeder is able to bring his young pigs at the age of three months," which is really the important period of the life of the animal, and also the time when the hog man shows his true skill. The pamphlet, which can be had at no cost by applying, postage free, to the Publications Branch of the Department at Ottawa, proceeds to deal with the feeding of the boar and, at great length, with the feeding and care of the brood sow.

Keeping Cost Of Horse Labor Low

Having Only Horses Enough To Do Work Required

By using proper machinery, correct hitching and by keeping only the number of horses that can do the necessary work and be used a larger number of hours, the cost of horse labor on the farm may be kept low.

Legions of farmers in the United States, in higher returns to the farmer. These facts are emphasized by farm economists at South Dakota State College in reviewing a recent preliminary report. This report shows that the cost of horse work varied from 6 cents an hour to 15.5 cents an hour, with the average on all the farms being 11 cents.

The farmers who kept horse costs low, all worked each horse owned over 1,000 hours during the year. One man worked his horses 1,276 hours, each, nearly twice as much as on the farm previously mentioned where costs were high, and there was little difference in appearance of the horses at the end of the year.

Horses can't be worked, of course, unless there is something for them to do which brings up the old but important point of diversification. A variety of crops furnishes the basis for using horses more days during the year.

B.C. To Form Cattle Pool

Stock Raisers Will Organize With Head Office at Vancouver

In an effort to obtain better prices and improved marketing conditions, British Columbia stock raisers have decided to follow the lead of Alberta and other prairie provinces and organize a selling agency for their cattle and live stock, with the head office to be in Vancouver. This step was decided upon recently at the most representative gathering of stock raisers ever held in the province, at Kamloops.

The working system of the Alberta pool was explained by A. B. Claypool, of the Alberta Live Stock Growers' Agency, Calgary, who believed that it would be possible for cattle raisers of the coast province to amalgamate with the prairie pooling organizations.

After N. Curtis, of the Dominion Government stock yards at Edmonton, had reviewed the history of the yards, and expressed the belief that the establishment of similar facilities in Vancouver would not prove practicable, the resolution providing for the formation of the subsidiary organization was put to the vote and enthusiastically passed.

The new body will be known as the British Columbia Stock Raisers' Selling Agency.

Map Of New Lake Area

Mapping a Hitherto Unmapped Area Northwest Of And Adjoining Red Lake

A few weeks ago it was announced in the press that the federal authorities were engaged upon a mapping program covering the region in the vicinity of Red Lake. In accordance with this mapping program, a provisional map of the Red Lake district itself had been issued to meet the urgent need for the presentation of authentic topographic information; and the subsequent publication of map sheets lying on all sides of the Red Lake region was provided for. Two of these projected sheets were issued during the past few weeks, namely, the Lac Seul sheet and the Point du Bois sheet, lying respectively to the south-east and the south-west of Red Lake, and north from the main line of the Canadian National railways. The mapping program has been carried on by the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the Survey's branch of the Department of Lands and Forests, Ontario, and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A third sheet is now ready for issue to the public. This is known as Carroll Lake sheet and comprises an area lying northwest of and adjoining Red Lake, included within latitudes 51 deg. and 52 deg. and longitudes 94 deg. and 95 deg.

These sheets are published on the scale of four miles to the inch. They are issued in folder form for convenience in carrying in the pocket and may be obtained for the nominal fee of fifty cents by writing the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. They are also issued in plain form, unfolded, for which the fee is twenty-five cents.

Using Sunlight As Fuel

Theory of Heating Engineers Worth Trying Out

Heating engineers have discovered new possibilities in sunlight as a means of heating the home, and are experimenting with the feasibility of building glass roofs. By providing houses with glass roofs, properly insulated, it is believed that great quantities of fuel can be saved during the winter months. Doubters of the theory are referred to the sunny bay window of the average house on a winter day where the sun works without scientific assistance.

Feeding And Fattening Sheep

Information Gleaned From Feeding Test Carried Out At Lacombe

In a feeding test carried out in Alberta, and which is reported in Bulletin 68 of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, dealing with sheep raised in Central Alberta, between out green feed and lowland hay for fattening ewes, the results proved very much in favor of lowland hay.

Another test was conducted to ascertain the best roughage for feeding shearing wethers in winter. Eight different kinds of roughage were employed, namely, alfalfa, upland hay, rough cut green feed, cut oat straw, timothy hay, green feed, and with one lot fed on cut oat green feed. Whole oats were fed to the first eight of nine lots of wethers, there being ten head in each lot.

As pointed out by the authors, Superintendent F. H. Reed and I. T. Chapman, assistant, of the Lacombe, Alta., Dominion experimental station, two conclusions are evident from elaborate data given in the bulletin, first, that home grown roughages made good gains and made the most money; secondly, that a grain supplement is necessary for fattening wethers. The second point is brought out very forcibly in two of the lots, one of which fed cut oat green feed with oats gave a profit of $1.04 per head, while the other, fed no grain, furnished a loss of $1.28 per head. Another lot which received cut oat straw with oats showed even a greater profit than the first mentioned.

Boosted Price Of Tea

Thirty Frames Is Price In Paris Restaurant Because Spoons Were Stolen

Thirty frames for a cup of tea charged in one of the chic restaurants in the Bois de Boulogne has caused many protests from customers. The tea is very weak and no spoon is served with it.

"I don't mind paying a dollar for a cup of sweetened hot water," an American remarked to the waiter recently, "but at least give me a spoon to stir up the sugar with."

"The absence of spoons is the reason why the tea costs thirty frames," came the reply. "We had a thousand spoons at the beginning of the season; we have about fifty left. Souvenir hunters took the rest. We only serve spoons now to customers who want."

The Newest Word

"Ballyhoo, meaning extravagant advertising, has become a member in the society of good speech and will appear in the next edition of the New Standard Dictionary.

Reports from lonely outposts in the Canadian Arctic lands show that the high reputation of Canada's mounted police force is being sustained. From the stations of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on Inuvik, Devon and Ellesmere Islands come stories of single patrol through the Arctic winter in black, inaccessible sections of the north. Two of these journeys made by members of the mounted police are given special note. The first, undertaken by Staff Sergeant A. H. Wright, covered a distance of 875 miles and occupied forty days. The second, made by Sergeant J. E. V. Wright, accounted for 4,385 miles of travel between February 15 and May 3 of the present year. The latter patrol was made for the purpose of investigating the alleged murder of an Eskimo several years ago.

The first of these patrols is regarded as a notable piece of travel. Staff Sergeant V. Wright, who was on an Eskimo dog-driver and hunter, from Gray Harbor around the southern and western shores of Ellesmere Island and crossed through the Sound to Axel Heiberg, the large island lying to the west of Ellesmere. Hitherto Axel Heiberg has been regarded as one of the most inaccessible of the Canadian Arctic islands. The report mentions that both Sergeant V. Wright, and his companion suffered from blindness while on Axel Heiberg. The same officer, while descending a glacier, ran into a network of deep crevasses masked by light snow. He discovered the existence of the crevasses when his dog team broke through. One trace broke, and the dog was not heard of again.

Sergeant Wright's long patrol took him through a country which is so little known that the latest maps provided to be inaccurate as to the situation of several large lakes which it contains. Traversing regions unknown to his Eskimo companions, he visited a number of small bands of Eskimos and found that the natives were of the same type as those living in the west. He was able to assist in relieving their distress.

In addition to these two long patrols, numerous others are reported. The mounted police have now patrolled the whole of the east coast of the northern half of Ellesmere Island. They have patrolled part of the coast of Axel Heiberg; the northern and southern coasts of Devon Island; and the whole of the north and west coasts of Baffin Island as well as part of the east coast. The distance travelled by the two detachments on Baffin Island was over six thousand miles, while on Ellesmere Island a distance of 2,300 miles was covered. These figures are exclusive of ground covered in hunting trips.

Thus the work of exploring and policing the north goes on. Through the dangers and hardships of the northern winter, the mounted police continue to push their way farther and farther into the almost unknown sections of Canada's Arctic continent. And down in the temperate zone, the public is informed that the winter in the northeastern Arctic was one of "great activity."

This will be the second largest crop of wheat in the province's history.

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM.

This is a condition for which there are many names, but which few of them really understand. It is a condition of the body, as it were, of the vital force that sustains the system. No matter what may be the cause, it is almost universal, it is almost a sure sign of the approaching end of a man's life. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 7
THE FALL OF JERICHO
Golden Text: This is the victory that hath overcome the world, even our faith. 1 John 5:4.
Lesson: Joshua, 6:12-20.
Devotional Reading: Psalm, 66:1-9.

Explanations and Comments

1. Directions for the Capture of Jericho verses 17—"Now Jericho was straitly shut up because of the children of Israel: none went out and none came in." The Israelites had crossed the Jordan bearing at the head of the marching hosts the ark, the symbol of their religion, and their coming had struck terror into the hearts of the people of Jericho. The latter received strange directions as to the silent compassing of the city. "Ye must not shout," Joshua commanded the people, "for let your voice be heard, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout, then shall ye shout." The hardship was not in marching around the city, but in the doing it day after day, without result. Yet the consecutive days of marching were the preparation for the seventh day, when all of the city were to be slain. To many people their lives day after day seem but a treadmill existence. Thirty-two per cent of all the suicides are said to take place on Monday. May we not infer this to be because the discouraged beings cannot face another week like all those that have preceded it? Yet the monotonous weeks are a preparation, a discipline, for "the good success" that must be theirs who persevere in the life wherein God has placed them.

2 Years' Backache Subdued by "Nerviline"

"Backache was the bane of my life, and for two years I was no lame as to be unfit of work," writes E. R. Sloane from Georgetown. "While in Smith Bros' Drug Store, I heard of Nerviline, being a wonderful cure for backache, so I decided to try Nerviline. Thanks to Nerviline, my two years' backache was rubbed away, and today I am perfectly well."

All those who suffer from weak, aching backs, those whose muscles are stiff, whose joints are swollen, let them try Nerviline—the liniment that never fails. 50c at all dealers.

Milk And Sugar Combined For Cooking

Have you ever noticed how, in making sweetened drinks, a professional always uses a boiled sugar syrup? It is to get that wonderful flavor and consistency that makes a perfect combination of the liquid and the sugar. Many a good cook has vastly improved her recipes by using Eagle Brand Condensed Milk for this very reason. The milk and sugar are thoroughly combined (almost pre-cooked, you might say) so that results are obtainable that could not be expected if you mixed the sugar and milk yourself. Having the milk and sugar already blended is a great advantage. Aside from saving sugar—and the trouble of mixing—there is the certainty of a finer flavor to the dish. The condensed milk comes blazes quickly and easily with all other ingredients—binds them closer together—and gives the recipe a smoother texture. Another advantage of condensed milk is its convenience. One can keep several cans on hand as it keeps perfectly, so there is no such thing as running short, but rather a certainty of pure, fresh milk whenever it is required.

SASK. CABINET IS REDUCED TO SEVEN MINISTERS

Saskatoon.—Re-arrangements in the Saskatchewan Government as the result of the resignation of Hon. A. P. McNab as Minister of Public Works were announced here by Premier J. G. Gardiner. No new minister has been appointed and the portfolios have been reduced from eight to seven. Mr. Gardiner was one of the speakers later in the evening at a Hudson's Bay Hall banquet staged by the Saskatoon Board of Trade.

Relinquishing the portfolio of minister of highways, Mr. Gardiner takes over the railway portfolio and also becomes provincial treasurer. Hon. W. J. Patterson drops the treasurership and takes over highways and also retains his post as minister of telephones.

The portfolio of public works relinquished by Mr. McNab becomes the charge of Hon. J. M. Ulrich who also retains his previous portfolio as minister of health. Mr. Ulrich, however, gives up his post as provincial secretary to Hon. T. C. Davis, the latter adding this to his other duties as minister of municipal affairs and minister in charge of the bureau of labor.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, premier of Saskatchewan, was the chief guest of honor at the banquet. With him were associated Hon. John Bracken, premier of Manitoba, while Hon. W. R. Mowbray, federal minister of agriculture; Hon. J. A. Cross, attorney-general for Saskatchewan; Hon. A. P. McNab, minister of public works; Hon. T. C. Davis, minister of municipal affairs; C. R. McIntosh, M.P., Fred Johnston, M.P., Malcolm McLean, M.P., and numerous provincial members sat at the chief guest table.

Chris chiefs, representatives of educational institutions, aldermen from nearby cities and towns were present to assist in celebrating the fact that the Bay road is now complete with the exception of the last 95 miles to Fort Nelson.

The occasion was also celebrated by publicly bid Hon. Archie McNab farewell upon his retirement from the provincial government. High tribute was paid to "Archie" by numerous speakers. Premier Gardiner particularly praising Saskatchewan's oldest member of the Government.

Proposal Does Not Please Mine Owners

Not Friendly Toward Arbitration on Wages to End Coal Strike

London.—Labor is claiming that financial pressure is being brought to bear on the British government to intervene once more to get the coal strike settled, and some of their leaders are openly claiming that Monie Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is prepared to finance the resumption of work, provided there is arbitration on wages but not on hours of labor.

"Emperor" Cook will not listen to such a proposal, and the owners do not seem very friendly toward it. Meanwhile it is understood that Premier Baldwin is not willing to intervene unless practical proposals are placed before him and his government by the miners.

Mitchell Field, N.Y.—An unofficial world's speed record for seaplanes was claimed for Lieut. Frank H. Conant, 2nd, U.S. N., when he drove over a four-mile course at a speed estimated by observers to be more than 250 miles an hour. Lieut. James E. Doolittle, army aviator, holds the official record of 245 miles.

Fuel Famine Faces Europe

W. N. U. 1655

Will Unite East And West

Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan Has Faith in Future of the H. B. Road

Saskatoon.—Discussing the effect of the completion of the Hudson's Bay Road, at the banquet tendered by the board of trade here, Premier Gardiner said in part: "To Saskatchewan completion of the Hudson's Bay route means the opening up of that great strip of productive territory between Saskatchewan and Churchill rivers. It means the cutting of the distance to Liverpool by a thousand miles during four or five months of the year and provides a fourth outlet for the growing production of Western Canada. Just as the opening up of the wooded area of the West added to the national prosperity, so will it increase through the building of the Hudson's Bay line. To Canada it promises assistance in the solution of the problems of the Maritimes, which are the most discouraging questions confronting Confederation today. The Maritimes, with their coal, iron and timber, can develop a manufacturing industry based upon the existence of these two minerals in one area, which will give new life and hope to the people of the area, because the Hudson's Bay route and stage at the Bay will place them at the front door to the Western markets, making it possible for them to compete with the central part of Canada and the United States on equal terms. In addition to carrying the broadening effects from the Rockies to the Hudson's Bay, this road should unite East and West as no other transportation undertaking has done, thus encouraging national capitalism in Canada."

The national characteristics of the British race will cause our doubts to disappear in the interests of Empire when the first season of operation in the Bay has passed into history. Those seamen whose ancestors have braved the dangers of the straits for two hundred and fifty years, those seamen whose ancestors boast the names of Drake, Forbisher and Hawkins, those seamen upon whose faith in the navy more than once the future of the Empire has rested, those seamen whose ancestors fought two naval battles in the Bay in the eighteenth century, those men will find ways and means to stretch the four months' season set down by tenderfoot engineers into six or more months. All the conveniences of this age are in their favor, and they would be unworthy sons of worthy fathers did they not see in the Hudson's Bay route not only the interests of Saskatchewan, the interests of Canada, but the interests of an Empire more closely knit together by a trade route the shortest to the Orient and unmistakably British."

No Signal From Mars

British Astronomers Fail to Catch Any Sign of Life From Neighboring Planet

London.—Mars, which just now is edging a little closer to the earth than ordinarily, failed to flash an SOS or any other signals which might thrill British astronomers or eager listeners at the radio, but thousands of enthusiastic stargazers and others remained hopefully on the job.

The biggest telescope in Greenwich Observatory worked overtime to satisfy the scientific search for knowledge of Mars' hidden mysteries, but in vain. A 22-valve superheterodyne receiving set, installed by a wireless magazine, also functioned as best it could, but no inter-planetary sounds, signs or symbols were trapped.

The Martians, if there are such and if they have been engaged in an attempt to communicate with Mother Earth, will have to try again.

Reasons Canada Gets Unsuitable Emigrants

System of British Dole Responsible Says Sir Percival Phillips

London.—Introducing a series of articles by Sir Percival Phillips on the expansion of Canada and trade prospects there, The Daily Mail in an editorial says, the progress of Canada is watched with sympathy and satisfaction by Great Britain.

Today the Canadian people are our best customers. The custom of each Canadian is seven times as valuable as the custom of an American citizen. One dark spot in our relations with Canada is the difficulty of supplying her with suitable emigrants. Unless the system of doles and reckless outdoor relief schemes in British states there will be risk that Canada, like the United States will be swamped with a polyglot immigration from central and Eastern Europe.

The schools have been closed because of an order making the teaching of Italian compulsory. No casualties were reported, and the sailors withdrew. Confirmation of the report has not been obtained.

The decree specifies that all the cattle and grain which Krim seized during his warfare against the French and Spanish forces shall be returned to the former owners.

Was Well Known In Canada

AIR OF MYSTERY SURROUNDS THE IMPERIAL PARLEY

London.—An air of entertaining mystery now surrounds the Imperial conference. All the delegates are warm in their contention that it is a conference, not a cabinet, but no Downing street cabinet ever guarded its secrets more jealously.

Delegates in silk hats drive up. Messengers hurry with red dispatch boxes. Policemen hustle a few curious ones to the other side of the street. The slim turbaned figure of the personal guard of Sir Mijay Chand Mahab, Maharajahprasa Bahadur of Burdwan, the Indian delegate to the conference, shivers under the foreign office airway.

That is all that is now seen of the great conference—from the outside.

Twice a day a dwindling crowd of newspapermen gather in the office of the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs and solemnly admire a Rubens hanging on the wall. With poised pencils and bated breath they listen while the official spokesman of the conference gives what purports to be a story of the conference doings. But it is not very illuminating.

"Do you want names?" he wearily asks.

Warily the newspapermen shake their heads indicating that they don't want them. They have had them many times before.

The official spokesman gives the newspapermen the time the conference met and the time it adjourned, also the subject discussed.

And that is all the newspapermen now officially know of the conference from the inside.

As a result the conference proceedings are receiving scant attention from the London newspapers. Some of the more tolerant ones among them print the conference news in the "background." For the most part the indignant editors consign it to oblivion.

Asking Justice For Canadian Magazines

Removal of Unfair Advantages Given U.S. Publications Is Requested

Ottawa.—Asserting that they only ask common justice for Canadian magazines in competition with the United States publications and periodicals, members of the Magazine Publishers' Association of Canada went to Ottawa to present their case before the advisory board of tariff and taxation.

The association presented a number of resolutions passed by its annual bodies and gave details of various suggested forms of relief but left decision as to the best form of such relief to the impartial judgment of the tariff board. Canada imports annually more than fifty million copies of United States magazines, many containing purely advertising matter which affects Canadian industry in general.

The association will ask removal of what it considers "favors and unfair advantages at present conferred in Canada upon foreign publications," favors secured at a time when Canada was small and foreign circulation was not forced.

Lending a Hand to Mother Nature

1. Stripping the small Cut-throat Trout.
2. Over 2000 potential cut-throats. Measuring the eggs into the open mesh baskets in the floating position hatchery units.

Unfortunately Mother Nature made no provision for the growing army of Isak Walton in her scheme of things. Man supplements nature in re-stocking the trout streams of the Canadian Pacific Rockies, through the agency of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, which conducts artificial Cut-throat spawning and hatching operation in the Rockies each spring.

Authorities have estimated that only about three percent of all Cut-throat trout, eggs naturally spawned, hatch. The reason given is the desire of fish spawning at other times to feed on the newly laid eggs with the result that the male Cut-throat, after driving off the enemies fertilizes the eggs too late, when they have absorbed so much water that they cannot absorb the fertilizing fluid.

From 87 to 90 percent of eggs artificially spawned at Banff and Spray Lakes, hatch under artificial methods. This is how it is done:
Towards the end of March just before spawning time the trout are caught in nets, stripped, and returned to the streams, while the eggs from the female and fertilizing fluid from the male Cut-throat are mixed. In ten weeks the young fry is ready for its new home in the trout stream where it reaches the length of over eight inches in about four years.

The annual spring harvest of Cut-throat eggs at Spray Lakes—each female giving from 800 to 1,500 eggs—is about three-quarters of a million. At present 824,824 Lock Leven trout eggs, 172,918 Lake Superior Salmon Trout, 515,906 Rainbow, and 5,600,000 Pickering eggs are hatching in the Banff Hatchery. The hatchery for 1926 will also include one million Cut-throat eggs imported from Wisconsin and 250,000 from Spray Lakes, making a total of over eight and a half million eggs hatching in the Canadian Pacific Rockies to provide sport for anglers.

The outstanding example of the good results accruing from this work began in 1914, is the growing annual catch of Lake Superior Salmon Trout at Lake Minnawanka, about nine miles from the C.P.R. Banff Springs Hotel, while Spray Lakes, an easy riding trip from the Hotel is still the favorite Cut-throat fishing area in the Rockies, where fishing is as good as ever in spite of the growing number of anglers.

Control of the fish and game industry in the State of Ohio is being sought by a commission composed of five experts on game conservation. This industry is at present in the hands of the Department of Agriculture. The proposal will be placed before the government by the game and fish leagues in Ohio, the belief being that the existence of such a commission would be in accordance with the growing importance of the fish and game industry in that state.

Strange Romantic Love Adventures of the Flapper you know?

She saw the stubbornness that she always hated, settle deeper in his eyes. "No," he returned. "It can't be worked out that way. Jo, I'd never live with you in a house you'd paid for, even with money given you for a reason that I hope will turn out to be all right. You see, I too, have plans. You know them, even if you never cared much about listening to them. I've got to make my way. The career I want is one that can't be bought. You can't give it to me like you would a birthday present. Different, you see, from yours."

She looked at him from widened eyes. She wondered at her own calm. She was not hurt, as she had been that night at Mrs. Adams' when John repulsed her. He was not doing that sort of thing again. Now he was quietly, stubbornly thrusting himself out of her life, or rather, thrusting her out of his.

A wild impulse to run up stairs, wrap herself in a cloak and run out into the street with him, thrilled her for a moment and then lapsed into the deadly calm that puzzled her.

"But John," she said, "I love you. I have always loved you. Why must you make such a fuss about the money? It won't change me, not so much as it has changed you." He interrupted her: "That's just it! It won't change you. It has only brought you out of yourself, and revealed you. This sort of thing won't get you any place in the end. It is not the background for a girl, no matter how good she is, and I believe, Jo, as I always have, that you're good. You will stay good just as long as you can. I shall always

Are Sensitive to Music

Martial Airs Have An Especial Attraction For Horses

Horses are particularly sensitive to music, especially martial airs. In 1892 a certain regiment was making a military test march. When the music started a young horse, ridden by a captain, hastened forward and placed itself in spite of its rider, behind the last rank of the musicians. Then it followed peacefully, giving obvious signs of pleasure. When the music ceased the captain was able to resume his place at the head of his company. But when the band struck up again the horse galloped ahead, and once more placed itself behind the musicians.

Fine for catarrh when melted in a spoon or snuff, used up the nose and vapors inhaled.

Head and Chest Colds Relieved in a New Way

A Salve, which Releases Medicated Vapors when Applied Over Throat and Chest.

Inhaled as a vapor and at the same time absorbed through the skin like a liniment, Vicks VapoRub reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages. This is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles that is proving so popular in Canada and the States where over 17 million jars are now used yearly. Splendid for sore throat, tonsillitis, bronchitis, croup, head and chest colds, catarrh, asthma or hay fever. Just rub Vicks over throat and chest and inhale the medicated vapors. It quickly loosens up a cold.

she brought me in here. Before I realized it I got to telling her how much I do love you, and why I can't have you. That was all. She told me, of course, that I was a fool. She is one who would think so.

"And so am I John," Joanna told him, quickly. Kenilworth opened the door. When he saw that John was there, still there, he would have gone away and closed the door behind him. Joanna called him back.

"Mr. Wilmore is just leaving," she explained, eyeing John, coolly. "And I don't want to go out and dance just yet. I want you to stay in here and talk to me."

It would have been an awkward moment if Roddy had been one ever to be at a loss to meet any situation. His wisdom seldom failed. He chafed her and said good night to the younger man with an ease that cleared the atmosphere. When John went out Joanna did not get up from the couch. She held out her hand to him and when he took it, she wrapped her fingers about his, and held it there for a moment. There were no words between them.

Roddy went over and gently closed the door, which John had left open. When he stood over the girl her head had dropped onto her arm. She had drawn her knees under her. As Roddy took note of her he concluded that just then she was not thinking of herself, or of anything about herself. Instinctively he sensed the slow away-ness of a soul being wrung at either end with two precious bits of magic. And he knew that one end of the scale was slowly dropping. He wondered which end would be the heaviest.

Without a warning rustle the limp figure on the couch straightened and turned. Roddy knew how the scale had come. He was startled by the change in Joanna. Her pulse was new, and almost rapid. There was something haughty and something else defiant and dangerous in her.

"I wonder," she asked him, stirring him with a look from between her lids that he had not caught before, "if you would think me very silly if I should ask you to do a very silly thing?" His answer was the obvious one. And it was obvious, also, that he should go a little closer to her. The message in her eyes made it so. "I want you to kiss me," she said.

HAIR CAME OUT IN COMBFULS

Pimples on Scalp Itched Badly. Cuticura Heals.

"After having the flu my hair fell out so that I had to have it bobbed. I also had some pimples on my scalp and it itched badly. When I combed it, it came out in combfuls."

"I sent for a few samples of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It helped me so, I purchased more, and after using one case of Cuticura Soap together with the Cuticura Ointment, I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Geo. H. Elliott, West St. R. R. 4, Ottumwa, Iowa.

He drew her up to him instantly, his lips had almost brushed hers when she suddenly pressed him back—again that trick with her hands. "I want to tell you something, first," she exclaimed. "It isn't you Roddy, that I want to kiss me—anyone would do just now. There's something on my lips, something that was put there a little while ago, I want taken off—it needs a kiss to do it. Because you happen to be here I am asking you. You see I must be fair with you—since I'm doing the asking."

"One explains a kiss afterwards, never before," he murmured and caught her hands and held them. She yielded her lips completely. She felt that she was being wrapped in a burst of bliss. She closed her eyes so that she would not see what was in his, but she gave herself to the caress without stint. When he released her she said:

"There! You mustn't spoil it by demanding another. I want to go out to the party, now, and dance. And I am going to flirt outrageously with Teddy Dominator. He has been begging me to discover how sentimental he can be all evening. But I still want you to do something else for me. I want you to make sure that Yvonne knows you kissed me, and that I allowed it. You don't need to say I asked you but you may say that I didn't take my lips away."

Within half an hour Joanna was hidden away, in the safest corner of the winter garden, with young Teddy. She had promised him only fifteen minutes. She granted him but a few more, despite his pleadings that one couldn't crowd an eternity into such a short space of time. She insisted that he find Brandon and bring him to her. "He has not been nice to me, tonight," she explained. "And I want to be nice to him." She laughed at that rhetorical misapprehension and sent him away.

Roddy Kenilworth, when he had turned her over to Dominator, went back into the morning room. When he had made himself a drink, out of the bottles in the cabinet, he settled back in a chair and fell to studying the ceiling. When Yvonne looked in he explained that his brain had become twisted around a circumlocution and he couldn't take any interest in anything or anybody outside until he'd straightened it out.

A New Hobby For Women

Remarkable Interest Is Now Being Taken In Basketry

Most people will have noted the remarkable growth of interest in basketry of late years. At last women have a hobby offered them far more interesting to the average person than sewing, which does not affect the eyes, and develops a decided creative ability. Practically all of the Federal and provincial institutes in Canada are promoting this work, as are also numbers of the schools, with the result that many people are finding that they can combine pleasure with usefulness in filling in their spare time at a pleasant hobby and at the same time furnish all the small articles of furniture which are so necessary to the comfortable home.

Many children die from the assaults of worms, and the first care of mothers should be to see that their infants are free from these pests. A vermifuge that can be depended on is Miller's Worm Expeller. They will not only expel worms from the system, but act as a health-giving medicine and a tonic for infants, enfeebling them and endangering their lives.

Men who are always attempting to kill two birds with one stone never bag much game.

Reginald Frank Stone

—Matilda Studio

St. Catharines, Ont.—"During my first expectant period I was in very poor health, was very nervous, suffered from morning sickness, had backache and abdominal pains. I was as miserable as could be. Through a friend I learned of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after taking it I got along fine; it relieved me of the morning sickness, pains and distress thru my back and sides and I grew well and strong. Was able to do my own work the remainder of the time. I experienced very little suffering and had a fine healthy baby, who has never had a day's sickness except slight colds. I was very glad to know of a medicine of value as the 'Prescription' proved to be."—Mrs. Reginald Stone, 68 Haynes Ave. All dealers. Mother of Eleven Children Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Her Interesting Experience

Buckingham, Quebec—"I am the mother of eleven living children, and my baby is five months old. I am only 38 years old and I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and my nerves. I knew of it from my mother, that you spent more than an hour about away in here with Yvonne? She doesn't walk about with her eyes on the ground and her mind on the parties of the lily. Didn't you suffer—all alone with her?"

"We were talking of you," he replied, shortly. "Yes," she retorted, her eyes narrowed a little, "there's a man who coaxed me into the winter garden just a little while ago, and spent the whole time talking of his wife." She knew that she was being utterly foolish and childish, and irrelevant. But, still, she watched John curiously. For some reason he thought it necessary to explain.

"When I told her I was going and wanted to stay goodnight, as I should,

Officers of the Rifle Club announce a turkey shoot this afternoon of Wed. Nov. 10, with a smoking concert at Stony in the evening.

The local schools are closed today and tomorrow, as the teachers are holding their convention in Edmonton at this time.

Meredith Bros. this week made a shipment of poultry to Edmonton.

Visitors to Stony this week included: J. C. Landry, the Edmonton lawyer; Mr. Waulbaum, the Poultryman's Chas. Chessier, from Mount Robson.

Mr. Henry Schwindt, who was taken some time ago to the mental hospital at Ponoka, for treatment, is said to be making rapid progress toward recovery.

One of the attractions in town Friday night was the fistic encounter. Wudel's hall being in use at the time, the affair was held at the hall's northeast corner, outside, and was between a heavyweight sod-buster named Walder and a light-heavy recently arrived from Prince George.

The chicken season closing the next day, the rumpus is said to have started in an argument over one. One-round Walder opened proceedings with a right swing, which was easily countered; his next was a left jab which landed on Herm's proboscis, causing some language and the blood to flow. Herm woke up and shot four or five straight lefts to his opponent's solar plexus, reminding Walder of the time he fell out of the hay-loft.

After a rather harmless fusillade of blows from each, the contestants worked thru the horse rail and onto Main St. It was at this juncture that the low-set, pug-nosed with the bull neck who had been egging on the fighters to annihilate each other tripped over a cork and fell head-first thru a store window. This chap has posed as a prize-fighter, and was known in the East as "The Oakville Strawberry." 'Tis the open season for street brawls in Stony, this being the second one within a week.

A fire broke out Saturday afternoon last, in the stable of Mr. Snow, at Glory Hills, and partly destroyed the building, which had but recently been erected. The origin is supposed to be due to spontaneous combustion, as some damp feed had been stored in the loft. There was a danger at one time that the conflagration would spread to Mr. Snow's new house, located nearby, and every effort was made to save this. The neighbors turned out and did good work, the volunteer brigade being led by Major Dennis.

Card of Thanks—Wm Robertson wishes to thank his many friends and acquaintances for the beautiful flowers, also letters and other kind expressions of sympathy in his recent sad bereavement.

The Antler Chasers.

If there is not a plethora of venison and moose meat in this district, it will not be thru lack of effort on the part of local Nimrods. Stony's chief license vendor reports a very large number of permits sold, for so early in the season.

The old-time hunter, Mr. M. Ducholke, started out on the first day of the week for a point 80 miles west, exact location not disclosed. Mike's friends expect him to keep up his reputation of not returning empty-handed.

Another redoubtable deer slayer, Geo. Schadeck, is also at the head of a party of shooters on the war-path for big game.

Messrs R. G. Meads and Alf Kleven are touring the Billy district, each armed with deer slaying permits and 308's.

Messrs G. Schultze and F. Dornbusch are keeping an eye on the big game along the north side river bank.

Mr. Louie Ulmer is heading a party of young sportsmen, each bent on securing a trophy of the chase from the district south of Junkins.

Young Mr. Adams is looking after the big-game strays in the sector across the river.

That enterprising young huntsman Mr. Kreschka Klushin purchased his first big-game license on Monday. He spoke in such confident terms of getting a deer, his friends think he has a tame one corralled somewhere up near Pickleville.

Another keen hunter, Mr. Otto Hoffman, motored west Monday morning with a select party. Ot will have the moose hide tanned for a sofa throw, and has promised the horns to the Editor.

When interviewed as to the possibility of his joining the hunters, Mr. Groff replied: "Yinst now I vox busy mit der jickens; but maybe putty soon we goes after der dears. Yah!"

Canadian Apples for Overseas Firesides.

Canadian orchards are hung heavy with luscious red apples, symbols of Canada's sunshine and her bright summer days. The crop this autumn is the best in years and boxes and barrels of choice hand-picked and hand-packed fruit are procurable at reasonable prices from any grocer.

And could anything be more appropriate to carry your kind thoughts and good wishes to the fireside of your friends overseas, this Christmas, than a box of these ruddy cheerful-looking apples. The matter of shipment is as simple as the mailing of a card.

The Canadian National Express will call for your apples, transport and deliver them, by quick service to any station in Great Britain, Ireland and in all European countries.

The transportation charge from Montreal and Quebec up to Nov. 15th, or from Saint John and Halifax thereafter, by direct steamer to points in Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Islands is $3 per standard box and $6 per standard barrel, including refrigeration.
